BROOKLYN PLAYER HURT

NEWARK, April 18.—One of the three big soccer cup finals, in two of which the Brooklyn Celtics are contenders, was persons. The game resulted in favor of the Scottish Americans of Kearny, who, although they have been finalists twice before, in 1907 and 1910, had never captured the American Football Association trophy in the twenty-five years it has been in competition. The Scots won by the score of 1 goal to 0, and showed better form than the Cel-

in jeopardy, but Mather was equal to the occasion with a splendid stop. Mather did much good work for the balance of the period, for the Scots were pressing him hard. McWilliams proved a great back for the visitors. The Celtics' backs and halfbacks saved the situation for their side on more than one critical occasion, McGreevey's work in particular standing out.

After the restart Campion of the CHICAGO
Celtics was the first to force a corner, but the Scots again took matters in hand and Hemesley sent in a hot one that came within an ace of doing the Celtics. in hand and Hemestey one that came within an acc of doing the trick. King of the Celtics essayed a try for goal, which Knowles negotiated finely. The ball rebounded and McQueen found the net, but was ruled offside. Twenty-five minutes after the restart Archie Stark, flanked by Holt and Whirton, sent home a chot that yielded the winning score. It was no disgrace to Mather to miss it, for the ball suddenly hurtled at him through a bunch of players, giving him mo chance to get sight of it. Five minutes later to get sight of it. Five minutes later the control of the control
